MOOT PROPOSITION

BEFORE THE HON'BLE SUPREME COURT OF BHARNESIA, VARUNA PRASHTHA
CITY

WRIT PETITION 1 OF 2025

BETWEEN

1. Centre for Clean Energy and Mitigation of Effects of Climate Change, an NGO represented by its President Mr. Ramaswami
2. Sesa Ramaswami, Bharanesian National, A Resident, 7, First Street, Keeladi, Prakrith Nadu, Bharnesia

... PETITIONER

AND

1. Union Of Bharnesia (UOB) Department of Energy
2. Central Electricity Regulatory Commission
3. Prakrith Nadu Electricity Board
4. Department of Non-Conventional Energy, (UOB)
5. Statutory Electricity Boards of Bharnesia

... RESPONDENTS

BRIEF STATEMENT OF FACTS

1. The Union of Bharnesia (UOB) is an emerging superpower in the South Asian region, whose Constitution, statutes, economic, social indices and governing systems are substantially similar to those of the Union of India. Prakrith Nadu is a constituent state within the Union of Bharnesia. Its people are deeply passionate about their ancient linguistic traditions and cultural practices. In many ways, this State is different from the rest of Bharnesia. The State of Prakrith Nadu is among the relatively better-developed States of the Union of Bharnesia and leads in some of the important social parameters, such as adult literacy, healthcare delivery, reduction of urban–rural disparities, and a higher level of industrialization. It is one of the important producers of paddy and coconut in the country.
2. During 2022–2023 the Union of Bharnesia, depended on the following types of energy to meet its ever-increasing energy consumption:

Thermal energy (coal)	61%
Hydro energy	15%
Renewable energy	12%
Natural gas	9%
Nuclear energy	1%
Micro/Nano Hydel Energy	2%

3. In the Renewable Energy segment (12% of UOB's power generation) the shares of different components are as under:

Solar energy	57%
Wind energy	32%
Micro/nano-hydro power	3%
Biomass co-generation	7%
Waste-to-energy	1%

4. The Installation cost of producing different types of power in UOB during 2021-22 was as under

Type of Power	Capital Cost (Rs. crore per Megawatt)
Thermal power	8.34 crore per Megawatt
Hydro power	7–20 crore per Megawatt
Solar power	4.5–6 crore per Megawatt
Wind energy	4.5–6.5 crore per Megawatt
Biomass energy	3–6 crore per Megawatt
Nuclear power	11.7–14.2 crore per Megawatt

OPERATING COST

Biomass energy	Rs. 3–6 per kWh
Thermal energy	Rs. 3–6.9 per kWh
Fossil fuel energy	Rs. 5.3–5.4 per kWh
Nuclear energy	Rs. 3.83 -4 per kWh

5. Sesha Ramaswami is a Keeladi based justice delivery professional who is deeply committed to clean energy choices and environmental protection. He is actively involved in efforts to mitigate the effects of global warming and climate change. He is also the founder-trustee of the Centre for Clean Energy and Mitigation of Effects of Climate Change. This NGO does not receive any type of foreign or government funding. The Centre is actively involved in empowering small and marginal farmers, who voluntarily contribute 1% of their increased earnings generated through the NGO.
6. The State of Prakrith Nadu has implemented the Land Reforms Law of the Union of Bharnesia in full. The beneficiaries and partners of the Centre for Clean Energy (CFCE) are reasonably literate, skilled, small and medium farmers. They are above the poverty line but by no means rich. Because of the work/efforts of Mr. Sesha Ramaswamy and his trust, the living standards and social conditions of the people in Prakrith Nadu have improved considerably. Owing to this, Mr. Ramaswamy commanded great respect among the local community. The farmers were willing to accept many of his well-meaning, income-improving suggestions. In order to improve the productivity and profitability of coconut and paddy cultivation common in Prakrith Nadu—here most farmers own at least one acre of homestead land—Mr. Ramaswamy proposed the establishment of biomass gasification plants to generate electricity. Each unit was designed to operate as a 10-kWh nano-power plant, using locally available agricultural by-products as feedstock.
7. The basic raw materials used for the production of biogas were rice bran and coconut shells briquettes. The residue from rice bran plants produced high-quality silicon, while the coconut shell briquettes yielded activated charcoal. The NGO devised an elaborate network to collect these residues/sludges periodically, so that they would acquire the required scales to become credible suppliers of these high-value by-products. The NGO provided technical assistance to the farmers, on the condition that the carbon credits earned from their production of clean power would vest in the NGO. Bharnesia's Energy Law, permitted energy producers who operate 100 kWh power plants to accumulate and assign carbon credits to NGOs or commercial entities of their choice for a price. But many of the members of the NGO could not avail this benefit as their production/installed capacities seldom exceeded 10 to 30 Kwh of power. Many of them had solar plants in addition to biomass gasification plants. The NGO had 7500 households that had installed biomass gratification plants and another 12500 members had shown interest in installing these units in their homesteads. In fact, the NGO had persuaded its prosperous supporters to establish paddy/rice bran briquetting plants. But, because of lack of timely disbursement of subsidies, many farmers were unable to put up these plants, though they had the skills needed to do so. While other clean energy producers received substantial power production subsidy for partially meeting the cost of energy production units, biomass gasification power production units did not receive such a subsidy. They barely got 10–15% of the construction cost excluding civil works, whereas wind and solar energy producers got 25–40% of the costs of construction, including civil works.

8. The Prakrith Nadu Electricity Board (PNEB) was sympathetic to the demands of the Centre for Clean Energy and Mitigation of Climate Change (CCE&MCC). But, they could not influence the Union Ministry of Rural Development and Non-Conventional Energy who were in charge of fixing the subsidy account and its disbursement] to be favourable to CCE&MCC. Prakrith Nadu's peak electricity demand occurred between 7 p.m. and 11 a.m. The farmers generated power and accumulated it in their battery charging units. The Electricity Board withdrew power from these farmers during peak-consumption hours. Despite being classified as Domestic Family Consumers, most of them paid between ₹9 and ₹14 per unit for their own electricity consumption. To meet the shortfall during the peak hour surge demand, the Electricity Board resorted to spot purchase, often paying ₹18 to ₹22 per unit to super thermal power plants who relied on expensive imported coal.
9. Both the spot purchase of power and import of coal provided significant opportunities for political and bureaucratic power centres, creating avenues for substantial illegal gratification. Such a possibility did not exist when the power boards dealt with farmers or NGOs. Mr. Sesa Ramaswami, had made several representations which did not evoke any satisfactory resolution of the issues. Furthermore, the Electricity Boards drew power only during peak hour demand. For the rest of the time, they depended on ultra/super thermal power plants. This also hampered the small producers' ability to increase the quantum of power sales.

Hence, Mr. Sesa Ramaswami and the Centre for Clean Energy have approached the Supreme Court of Bharnesia, Varuna Prashtha Bench, seeking appropriate relief through the following writ petitions:

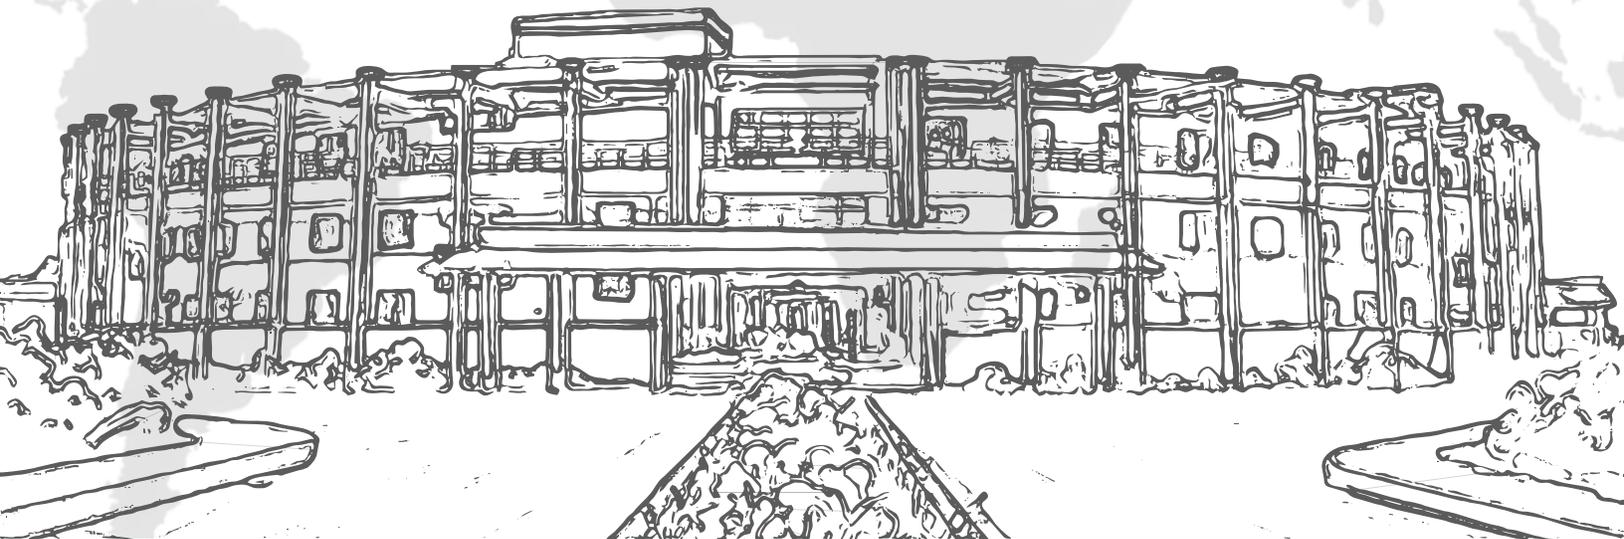

- I. Writ of Mandamus - To evolve a policy of power purchase that is fair and not arbitrary, by treating all clean energy producers equally and by granting subsidies to such power producers on an equal basis, thereby guaranteeing the right to equal protection of laws for biomass power plants in comparison with solar and wind energy power producers.
- ii. Writ of Certiorari - Seeking the quashing of the circular that restricted the capacity of power producers to transfer their earned carbon credits to purchasers of their choice; (which is right now available only for power producers with a capacity of 100 kWh).
- iii. Writ of Declaration - that all biomass energy producers are entitled to parity with other clean energy producers (solar and wind energy) in terms of purchase price, subsidy, regular, predictable ability to supply power throughout the day and their ability to dispose of the earned carbon credit.

1. Union of Bharnesia (UOB) has signed and ratified the Kyoto Protocol and the Paris Accord.
 2. The above moot court problem was conceived and written by R. Muralidharan, a Justice Delivery Professional based in Bangalore.
