ESTABLISHMENT OF ALTERNATE DISPUTE RESOLUTION (ADR) CELL

Concept Note

Alternate Dispute Resolution (ADR) encompasses various methods of resolving disputes outside judicial processes. The demand to study and research ADR is increasing in academia and practice. Mechanisms like Arbitration, Conciliation, Mediation, Negotiation, and Lok-Adalat offer effective and efficient alternatives for the resolution of disputes. Recognizing the importance of ADR in modern legal practice and considering the career perspective of the students, the college is proceeding to establish an ADR-Cell.

Objectives

- Promote Awareness: Educate students and faculties about ADR methods and their benefits.
- Skill Development: Train law students in ADR methods to enhance their employability and effectiveness as future legal practitioners.
- Practical Experience: Provide opportunities for students to participate in real-world ADR processes.
- Research: to promote and foster research in the field of ADR.

Activities

- Workshops and seminars on Arbitration, Conciliation, Mediation, Negotiation, and Lok-Adalat to be conducted by ADR experts.
- Guest lectures from renowned ADR practitioners and academicians.
